5. The nature and purpose of the proceedings and a summary of the facts are as follows:

Plaintiff has filed this act on against Defendant in the United States District Court, District of Utah Central Division, based on Defendant's efforts to prevent and destroy competition in the computer software industry, in violation of the antitrust laws of the United States, including Sections 1 and 2 of the Sherman Act, 15 U.S.C. §§ 1 and 2.

Microsoft has erected artificial barriers to entry and growth of personal computer operating systems, inter alia, through its contractual licensing arrangements with original equipment manufacturers ("OEMs") of personal computers. These contractual licensing practices have included: (a) license agreements which required OEMs to pay royalties to Microsoft not only when they sold personal computers containing Microsoft's operating system, MS-DOS, but also when they sold personal computers containing competing DOS software or no DOS software; (b) unreasonably long terms for licensing agreements with OEMs for the use of Microsoft's MS-DOS software.
6. For the purpose of obtaining evidence for use at trial, the Witness will be examined by plaintiff and/or defendant on the following subjects:
 - a. His statements, as an employee of Viglen, to Mr. David Bradley of Microsoft U.K., that are memorialized in a letter to Mr. Bradley dated June 5,

1992, and resulting course of conduct between the two companies. A copy of the June 5, 1992 letter is attached as Exhibit A. Said statements concern the March 1992 contract between the Witness' then employer Viglen, and Microsoft U.K. Ltd., for the license of MS-DOS. More specifically, these statements concern the per processor provision and long term duration of that licensing contract;

- b. The history and course of dealings between Viglen and Microsoft while the witness was employed by Viglen;
- c. The history and dealings, if any, between Viglen and DRI while the witness was employed at Viglen, including any testing of the DR DOS product;
- d. Consideration by Viglen of the license or purchase of any PC operating systems other than MS DOS or DR DOS; and
- e. The Witness' past and present relationship with Viglen.

Plaintiff and Defendant intend to introduce the Witness' videotape testimony at trial as relevant to their claims or defenses in the case.

7. The Witness is requested to bring to his examination a copy of his letter of June 5, 1992 to Mr. David Bradley of Microsoft UK Ltd.
8. The Plaintiff's attorneys and the Defendant's attorneys as detailed above shall be notified of the time and place for the execution of this request.
9. The parties to the action will each pay their own costs.
10. The English law firm Lovell White Durrant is authorized to act as agent for the Plaintiff's attorneys in executing this Letter of Request in England.

11. The District Court of Utah, Central Division, extends to the judicial authority of England the highest consideration for its courtesy and assistance in this matter. This Court also states that it shall be ready and willing to assist the courts of England in a similar matter when required.

Dear David,

Please find enclosed the March 1992 contract which I have duly signed.

Although we have signed this contract which I understand is the best that we could negotiate, I would for the record like to point out the three issues which we are not entirely happy with.

The first issue which you have addressed in your letter dated the 14th of April, 1992 is the long term (3 years) nature of the contract. I understand from your letter that any issue of pricing and commercial terms can be reviewed in the course of the three years if concern is raised. If this is the correct assessment of your letter then I am quite happy with that.

The second issue is the fact that the only OEM agreement you have been prepared to offer us on MS-DOS and Windows is a per processor license. Our main concern here is that a small proportion of our business involves providing Non Microsoft operating systems such as networks and others to our customers who require it. This means that we will be paying a royalty to Microsoft even though we would not be supplying Microsoft products. We have tried many times even to get exemption on some models on which we would not be supplying Microsoft products but this has not been accepted by yourselves, neither has a per copy license based on the same volume of business.

The third and final issue is the Microsoft Mouse driver. The retail Windows 3.1 product that Microsoft sells and describes as Windows 3.1 includes the Microsoft Mouse driver. This is clearly stated in the manuals. We have been asked to pay an extra amount per copy of this mouse driver should we decide to ship this product with Windows 3.1. Our customers are under the impression that we are cheating them and not providing a genuine Microsoft Windows 3.1 package. Your advertisement and description of the Windows 3.1 product to the general public does not explain that an OEM Windows 3.1 package is different to a Genuine Microsoft Windows 3.1 package. So what do we use when we are licensed to put the Windows Ready To Run Logo? Do we say Microsoft Windows 3.1 Mouse Driver Ready to Run? We have always had problems like this when a retail product that you supply does not correspond to the OEM version and both are called the same name.

Any way, I hope you will understand these concerns and maybe in future you may be able to address them more fully.

Yours sincerely,

David Kezandjian
